

HOLIDAY COUNTDOWN

WHAT TO BUY

TOYS FOR THE YOUNGSTERS

Nerf N-Strike Elite Hail-Fire Blaster — Your little sharp shooter won't miss his target with this automatic blaster with rotating ammo rack and foam darts. Kmart, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $39.99.

Every year, toy makers unveil thousands of “must-have” toys for the holiday season. And according to your kids' wish list, there is a reason they are called “must-haves.” Narrowing down the list can be a daunting task, and leaving off the biggest toy of the year, could land you on the parental naughty list. So, before braving the crowds or surfing the Web for the most popular, make sure you're armed with the knowledge of this season's “in” toys and gadgets.

Lego Friends — Finally, a set of Legos designed with girls in mind. The Friends line features five characters and everything they'll need to have fun in Heartlake City, the fictional Lego town designed just for the Friends. Sets include doll houses, furniture, accessories, and more. Kmart, Meijer, Sears, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmar, $4.99 to $99.99.

Orbeez Jewelry Maker — The Orbeez set allows children to design and even grow their own jewelry. The set transforms miniature bulbs into colorful light-up pendants. Kmart, Meijer, Sears, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $24.99

Furby — Everything old is new again, including toys. Furby, a hamster/owl-like robotic creature, has made its way back to the top of hottest toys lists. The interactive creature speaks Furbish and English and responds and changes personalities the more you play with it. Kmart, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $54.

Crayola Light Designer — Little artists can add cool effects and animations to their drawings with this rotating dome. Watch as the drawings turn into 3-D images and light up. Kmart, Meijer, Sears, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $39.99.

Beyblade Destroyer Dome Set — Beyblade players can take their favorite toy tops into the third dimension with a dome arena that allows blades to zip along the sides and upside down. Barnes & Noble Web site (bn.com), Kmart, Meijer, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $39.99.

Magna-Tiles — Give your kids a dose of science and architecture with these colorful tiles. Sets feature a variety of basic shapes, good for building two and three dimensional structures. Sensational Beginnings, $54.95 to $129.95.

Augmented Reality Puzzles — Travel to Africa, Norway, the rooftops of Paris, or under the sea as these jigsaw puzzles come to life. Gadget geeks can use mobile phones and tablets to transform these puzzles into realistic views and play games. Barnes & Noble and Walmart, $19.99

Password Journal — This journal is voice activated and features an invisible ink pen, a show/glow light and secret compartments. Young writers can also plug in MP3 players and listen to their favorite tunes while unloading their innermost thoughts. Kmart, Meijer, Sears, Target, Toys R Us, and Walmart, $23.99.

USA Interactive Talking Map — Kids will learn and have fun with this talking map that features over 1000 facts and questions about the 50 states, U.S. cities, landmarks, and more. Sensational Beginnings, $45.95.
