In Indianola and Newalla, for example, some people worried over perceived economic mismanagement.

Mr. Clinton carried the votes of white voters in North Carolina and favored Mrs. Clinton in South Dakota.

The economy was the dominant issue in both states, with Republicans charging that Mrs. Clinton was too liberal, and Mrs. Clinton attacking Mr. Obama as too extreme for the country.

Mr. Clinton carried the votes of white voters in North Carolina and favored Mrs. Clinton in South Dakota.

The economy was the dominant issue in both states, with Republicans charging that Mrs. Clinton was too liberal, and Mrs. Clinton attacking Mr. Obama as too extreme for the country.

Mr. Clinton carried the votes of white voters in North Carolina and favored Mrs. Clinton in South Dakota.

The economy was the dominant issue in both states, with Republicans charging that Mrs. Clinton was too liberal, and Mrs. Clinton attacking Mr. Obama as too extreme for the country.

Mr. Clinton carried the votes of white voters in North Carolina and favored Mrs. Clinton in South Dakota.

The economy was the dominant issue in both states, with Republicans charging that Mrs. Clinton was too liberal, and Mrs. Clinton attacking Mr. Obama as too extreme for the country.